A psychological suspense about a pair of lovers with the best intentions and the worst luck, locked in a passionate game of cat and mouse. But instead of rules, this game has dark secrets, forbidden desires, inevitable betrayals — and cold-blooded murder.

Polly wants a do over. So, she leaves her husband and daughter and hides in a small town where Adam says he's also passing through. Yet he stays — drawn to this mysterious redhead whose stillness unnerves and excites him. Over the course of a summer, Polly and Adam engage in a steamy, inexorable affair. Still, each holds something back from the other — dangerous, even lethal, secrets.

Then someone dies. Was it an accident, or part of a plan? Adam and Polly are so ensnared in each other's lives and lies that neither one knows how to get away — or even if they want to. Is their love strong enough to withstand the truth, or will it ultimately destroy them?

Something — or someone — has to give.

“Another extraordinary novel . . . full of just-one-more chapter, stay-up-late suspense, but packed too with nuance, subtlety, observation and humanity. Lippman is a natural storyteller at the height of her powers.” — Lee Child, #1 New York Times bestselling author
